ABOUT

I'm a computer science student at Kea who loves creating new things and learning new technologies every day.

I thoroughly enjoy the constant search for new and better solutions that occurs during the software development process and hope to be able to pursue this path even further.

Although new to the field, I've pushed myself and worked as a developer in a startup alongside my studies, further expanding my knowledge and progressing my passion.

As a developer, I'm quite flexible and can easily adapt to new tasks, like a chameleon adapts to its environment.
